FLYNN ROBINSON
Guard

Flynn Robinson, the Chicago Bulls' leading scorer, was obtained from the Bulls in return for forward Bob Love and guard Bob Weiss November 23 in a straight player trade engineered by Bucks' vice-president and general manager, John Erickson.

Robinson, 27, scored 343 points for a 19.1 scoring average while playing in 18 of the Bulls' 19 games prior to the trade. Love, 25, scored 107 points for a 7.6 average in 14 of the Bucks' 15 games while Weiss, 26, totaled 99 points in all 15 games for a 6.6 average.

Robinson, 6'1", 190 pounds and one of the NBA's top offensive guards, was the Cincinnati Royals' second-round draft choice in 1965 after setting an all-time scoring record at Wyoming. Because of illness, he did not play that season. The next year he scored 668 points for an 8.8 average in 76 games and improved to 1,476 points and a 15.7 average while splitting the season between Cincinnati and Chicago.

Robinson gave a preview of what was to come this season last year when he averaged 20.2 in five play-off games against Los Angeles with a high of 41 points in one game. Prior to joining the Bucks, he had a season high of 36 points against Philadelphia and scored 20 or more points eight times. In two games against the Bucks, he scored 23 points to top all scorers as the Bucks lost their NBA opener to the Bulls here in Milwaukee on October 16 and scored 13 points in Chicago November 20. The Bucks lost both games—89-84 in Milwaukee and 120-111 in Chicago.

COACHES CORNER

LARRY COSTELLO
Head Coach
Niagara '54

In Larry Costello, the Bucks have a coach who in 12 seasons as a pro player built up a reputation as one of the finest competitors in the game.

They also have a coach with a perfect record in the NBA, since Costello filled in for Alex Hannun for one game last season and led the Philadelphia 76ers to victory. Costello was the 76ers' unofficial assistant coach at the time, having suffered an Achilles tendon injury which had kept him out of action since December.

Costello averaged 12.2 points a game in the NBA and might have gone on playing a while longer but for the opportunity to start a career in coaching. His best years as a scorer were '57-'58; '58-'59 and '60-'61 when he averaged 14.9, 15.8 and 14.5 respectively. Always one of the leagues leading free throw shooters, he made 2432 of 2891 from the line over the years for an .841 percentage. An NBA All-Star six times, Larry played on teams that missed making the play-offs only twice in his 12 years in the league.

The former Niagara University star summed up his philosophy about coaching when he said, "I want players who love the game. A lot of them don't, and if they don't love the game, forget it. If I have my choice of a player with lots of desire and only average talent and one with lots of talent and little desire, I'll take the first one every time."

TOM NISSALKE
Assistant Coach-Scout
Florida State

Tom Nissalke, a native of Madison, was the first man hired by the Milwaukee club after the franchise was awarded to the city last January. He was appointed administrative assistant, and later he was named assistant coach as well.

Nissalke carries excellent credentials for both jobs. As Ralph Pedersen's coaching assistant at Tulane University for five seasons, he led the freshmen to a 19-0 record one year and the varsity to a 7-2 mark late last season after Pedersen suffered a heart attack. He also did Tulane's recruiting, and when he joined the Bucks, he supervised their successful activities in the college and expansion drafts.

BUCKS STAFF

EDDIE DOUCETTE
Publicity Director

Eddie Doucette, the Bucks Director of Public Relations and Publicity, is also the "Voice of the Bucks." A native Bostonian, Doucette is a former local Radio-TV personality who turned to the Bucks permanently after handling the bulk of the club's public speaking chores this past winter and spring.

A sports voice while attending Michigan State University, Doucette saw Radio-TV duty in Cincinnati, Toledo, Chicago and Milwaukee after graduation.

TED HERPEL
Business Manager

The one fellow who always has his hands wrapped around a couple of sharp pencils, is the Bucks Business Manager, Ted Herpel. This man juggles more numbers than the IRS before returns, and yet still manages to keep all the official statistics for the Bucks.

CATHY BARTLEY
Ticket Coordinator

Mrs. Cathy Bartley is the very affable Ticket Coordinator for the Bucks. The effervescent Mrs. Bartley brings four years of ticket experience to our organization. Cathy attended college at the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee.

ARNIE GARBER
Trainer

A whirlpool, analgesic balm, ace wrap and a little verbal psychology are Trainer Arnie Garber's specialties. The man who keeps the Bucks wheels oiled and moving, brings an extensive training room background and a heavy Eastern accent to Milwaukee. Arnie was the basketball trainer at Northeastern University in Boston recently.

1968-69 BUCKS OUTLOOK

The Bucks enter their National Basketball Association season with high hopes of becoming the most successful expansion team in the history of the league.

Only the Chicago Bulls of two winters ago have reached the NBA playoffs in their first year, and Coach Larry Costello is confident that the Bucks will be stronger all-around that the 1966-67 Bulls.

"I feel that we'll be good enough to beat anybody in the league," Costello said. "We have shooters, rebounders, ball handlers, runners—anything you can name. We have a combination of youth and experience, and we have depth at every position."

In the expansion draft, the Bucks landed such proven pros at Guy Rodgers, Wayne Embry, Fred Hetzel, Bob Warlick, Jon McGlocklin, Dave Gambee, Len Chappell, Bob Weiss, Bob Love and Jay Miller. In the college draft, they picked up a trio of outstanding rookie prospects in Charlie Paulk, Sam Williams and Greg Smith, and in a trade, they added another fine rookie in Dick Cunningham.

Hetzel, who averaged 19 points a game at San Francisco last year, is figured to be at one forward. His running mate will be chosen from among Gambee, Chappell, Love, Miller and Paulk. Embry and Rodgers, 10 year veterans, will probably be at center and one guard, respectively, with Warlick the probable starter at the other guard. McGlocklin and Weiss also will contend for starting berths in the backcourt.

The attitude and determination in the Bucks training camp was "great" according to Coach Costello. He added, "Everyone went to camp looking for a job, so most of the fellows were in good shape by the time they got there. They all worked hard and it wasn't easy to cut this squad with so many men of equal ability."

"Some new teams think in terms of winning and others think of building," Costello said. "With our personnel, we're thinking of winning and building at the same time. Our guys have a lot of pride and are not afraid to sacrifice to win."

1968-69 will be a very interesting year for the Milwaukee Bucks.

LEN CHAPPELL
Forward-Center

Height: 6'8"; Weight: 240
Birthdate: 1-31-41
College: Wake Forest '62
Acquired From: Detroit—Expansion
Years Pro: 7

Five years ago, as an NBA sophomore, Len Chappell averaged 17.2 points a game while dividing the season between the Philadelphia 76ers and New York Knickerbockers. He has never approached that performance since, yet the Bucks look upon him as one of the key players picked up in the expansion draft.

At 6 feet 8 inches and 240 pounds, the former Wake Forest all-American can play either forward or center. As a result, he conceivably could be near the top of the club in playing time without being a starter.

"He will be a swing man in the front line," said Coach Larry Costello. "We'll find plenty of work for him at both positions."

Now 27, Chappell had a brilliant college career at Wake Forest. He averaged 26.6 and 30.1 points a game, respectively, in his last two seasons and made the consensus all-American team as a senior. The Syracuse National made him their No. 1 draft choice in 1962. He moved to Philadelphia with the club a year later, and on to New York after one game of the 1963-64 season in a straight cash deal. After two and a half years as a Knick, he went to Chicago in the expansion draft, to Cincinnati in a swap for George Wilson to Detroit last year and finally to Milwaukee.

WAYNE EMBRY
Center

Height: 6'8"; Weight: 260
Birthdate: 3-26-37
College: Miami (Ohio) '58
Hometown: Boston, Mass.
Acquired from: Boston—Expansion
Years Pro: 11

Bucks Coach Larry Costello and General Manager John Erickson were pleasantly surprised when they found Wayne Embry's name on the Boston Celtics' expandable list in the expansion draft. They lost no time in acquiring rights to the 6 foot eight inch, 260 pound strong man and designating him as the man most likely to be the Bucks' No. 1 center.

"We were lucky to get a shot at him," Costello said. "He did an outstanding job of backing up Bill Russell at Boston and we never thought they would let him go. He is one of the few centers in the league that Wilt Chamberlain can't intimidate. With his size and strength, he can stay right in there and dish out as much as he takes."

Embry, 31, put in eight seasons with the Cincinnati Royals after a great college career at Miami of Ohio. In three successive seasons from 1961 to 1964, he had scoring averages of 19.8, 18.6, and 17.3 points a game. He played in four All-Star games and missed a fifth only because of an injury.

Traded to Boston for cash and a draft choice after the 1965-66 season, Embry proved to be just what the Celtics needed to spell the aging Russell. If he can make a comeback as a regular after two seasons as a part time performer, the Bucks' biggest problem will be no problem at all.

DAVE GAMBEE
Forward

Hgt: 6'6"; Wgt: 215
Birthdate: 4-16-37
College: Oregon State '58
Hometown: Portland, Oregon
Acquired From: San Diego—Expansion
Years Pro: 11

In Dave Gambee, the Bucks obtained a veteran of 10 years experience as an able performer in the NBA. Attesting to Gambee's consistency is the fact that he has averaged more than 10 points a game in six of his 10 seasons, including five in a row from 1960 to 1965.

The 6 foot 6 inch alumnus of Oregon State got a break when the Philadelphia 76ers exposed him to the expansion draft after the 1966-67 season. After two years of part time duty, he got a chance to play regularly again at San Diego and averaged a solid 13.4 for the new Rockets raising his career average to 11.

After a season such as that, Gambee scarcely expected to make it two expansion drafts in a row. But the Rockets made him available and the Bucks considered themselves fortunate to pick him up. He figures to wage a strong bid for a regular forward berth.

"Dave is a good, solid basketball player and he is sure to help us," said Coach Larry Costello, and Costello is in a position to know. He was a teammate of Gambee's at Syracuse and Philadelphia from 1960 to 1967.

In their seven seasons together, incidentally, Gambee and Costello developed a habit of winning. The club reached the NBA play-offs each year.

FRED HETZEL
Forward

Hgt: 6'8"; Wgt: 220
Birthdate: 7-21-42
College: Davidson '65
Hometown: Washington, D.C.
Acquired From: San Francisco—Expansion
Years Pro: 4

Nobody is quite sure why the San Francisco Warriors saw fit to include Fred Hetzel in the expansion pool when the NBA stocked its new Milwaukee and Phoenix clubs last May. The 6 foot 8 inch Davidson alumnus averaged 19 points a game last season, third high on the San Francisco club.

But the Bucks didn't ask questions when they saw Hetzel's name on the list. They snapped him up at the first opportunity, thus getting a player who could become one of the highest scorers in the NBA.

Said Coach Larry Costello, "He can shoot from anywhere and he's great from the free throw line. We don't know why the Warriors made him available, but we're mighty happy they did."

In his undergraduate days at Davidson, Hetzel was a second team all-American as a junior and a consensus first team choice as a senior. He averaged 23.5, 27.3, and 26.5 points a game, respectively, in his three varsity seasons, and was the first man to win three straight Southern conference scoring championships.

After a season of part time duty with the Warriors, Hetzel became a regular in 1966-67 and averaged 12.2. With the departure of the great Rick Barry, he became an even more prolific scorer last season.

"There were 35 points a game to spread around after Rick left," Hetzel said. "I was fortunate enough to get a few of them."

Bob Love, 25, is one of the younger expansion draftees on the Bucks' roster, and one of the brightest prospects. In two seasons as a reserve forward with the Cincinnati Royals, he posted highly respectable scoring averages of 6.7 and 6.4 respectively.

At 6 feet, 8 inches and 215 pounds, Love is well qualified physically to step into a starting forward berth with the Bucks. The only question is whether he fulfills the tremendous promise he showed with the Royals.

"He could make it big," said Coach Larry Costello. "He's big and strong, he's tough under the boards and he can shoot.

One has only to take a quick look at Love's college credentials to prove Costello's last point. In his last two seasons he ranked among the top small college scorers in the nation, averaging 26 and 30.6 points a game, respectively, at Southern University, Baton Rouge, Louisiana.

If Love can score half as often as a Buck, he will be around a long time.

JON McGLOCKLIN
Guard

Height: 6'5"; Weight: 205
Birthdate: 6-10-43
College: Indiana '65
Hometown: Franklin, Ind.
Acquired from: San Diego—Expansion
Years Pro: 4

When Jon McGlocklin was an undergraduate at Indiana, he was overshadowed by the famed Van Arsdale twins, Tom and Dick, now also in the NBA with Cincinnati and Phoenix, respectively. He also was handicapped by the Hoosiers' lack of an established center, which forced him to spend much of his college career out of position.

This combination of circumstances made McGlocklin a long shot to make the grade in pro basketball, but once he got out on his own he displayed ability that he had never really had a chance to show in college. He was drafted by the Cincinnati Royals and lost no time in proving that he belonged with the pros.

McGlockin spent two seasons with the Royals, then was involved in two straight expansion drafts en route to Milwaukee. First he went to the San Diego Rockets, then to the Bucks.

At 6 feet 5 inches, the former Hoosier gives the Bucks a big guard to cover the likes of Oscar Robertson and Jerry West. And he can score, too, as evidenced by his 12.1 point average and .867 free throw percentage at San Diego last year.

McGlocklin feels that he will become an even better player under Larry Costello, saying "After playing against Larry, I'm sure I'll learn more under him than I have in three years as a pro."

GUY RODGERS
Guard

Height: 5'11½"; Weight: 190
Birthdate: 9-1-35
College: Temple '58
Hometown: San Diego, California
Acquired From: Cincinnati—Expansion
Years Pro: 11

Seeing Guy Rodgers play just once inspires a person to superlatives. The veteran guard is one of the greatest ball handlers, one of the greatest playmakers, and one of the greatest crowd pleasers in the history of basketball.

Rodgers ranks third on the all-time assist list in the NBA, and he has played in the All-Star game four times. But statistics tell only part of the story of this basketball magician. The Temple University alumnus makes a ball do tricks that have to be seen to be believed.

It was Rodgers' remarkable combination of ability and showmanship that got the Chicago Bulls off the ground when they were organized two years ago. By his example, he convinced his less experienced teammates that they were major leaguers, and at the same time he convinced the skeptical fans of Chicago that pro basketball was worth watching.

The Bucks are sure he will do the same for them and Milwaukee.

BOB WEISS

The Bucks thought so highly of Bob Weiss that they selected him in the expansion draft despite the fact that he was headed for a lengthy tour of army duty. They received a pleasant surprise when the former Penn star was reclassified and became available for immediate service in Milwaukee.

Weiss, a 6 foot 3 inch guard, came into his own with the Seattle Supersonics last year after struggling for two seasons to make it with the Philadelphia 76ers. He had broken into just 13 games with the talent laden Philadelphia club, spending most of both campaigns at Wilmington in the Eastern league.

Picked up by Seattle in the expansion draft, Weiss averaged 9.8 points a game as understudy to the talented Walt Hazzard.

"I liked the town and the people," Weiss said, "but I was glad to get out because I was playing behind Hazzard."

In his senior year at Penn State, Weiss led the Nittany Lions to a 20-3 record and a berth in the NCAA tournament.

The Bucks landed one of the most promising big men in basketball when they acquired Dick Cunningham from the Phoenix Suns a few days before training began.

Cunningham, a 6 foot 10 inch, 260 pound giant, was the nation's leading rebounder at Murray (Ky.) State College as a junior in 1966-67, averaging 21.8 rebounds a game. He ranked fifth nationally as a senior last year with a 17.8 average. He had single game totals of 36 once and 34 twice.

The Bucks had hoped to get Cunningham in the NBA draft, only to have the Suns step in just ahead of them and pick him on the second round. But they didn't stop trying, and on September 12, they obtained the big guy for a 1969 draft choice.

Acquired from: College Draft No. 1

Years Pro: Rookie

The Bucks dipped into the small college ranks for their No. 1 choice in the college draft when they selected Charlie Paulk, yet they didn't exactly pick an unknown. On the contrary, Paulk was a little all-American at Northeastern State College in Tahlequah, Okla., and was named an alternate on the United States Olympic team.

Paulk gave up a chance to go to the Olympics to sign with the Bucks, explaining, "If selected as one of the 12 regular team members, I would have had to give it tremendous thought because of the honor of representing my country. But as an alternate, I wouldn't go because I would be losing too much financially on the slim chance that I might make the squad."

The Bucks thought so much of the 6 foot 7 inch native of Memphis, Tenn., that they picked him over Ohio State's fine forward, Bill Hosket. Tom Nissalke, the Bucks' scout and assistant coach, said, "Charlie is a better jumper, he blocks shots and has more experience."

Paulk played in the Pan-American games and the world tournament in 1967. He averaged 23.8 points and 14.9 rebounds a game in his senior season in college.

Guard-Forward

Height: 6'5"; Weight: 195

College: Western Kentucky
Hometown: Princeton, Ky.
Acquired from: College Draft No. 4
Years Pro: Rookie

The Bucks feel that they got a bargain when they found as promising a player as Greg Smith as low as the fourth round of the college draft. Smith was an outstanding all-around player at Western Kentucky for three years.

Standing a well built 6 feet 5 inches and blessed with extraordinary jumping ability, Smith played every position at one time or another in college. The Bucks originally envisioned him as a guard in the NBA, but early in training Coach Larry Costello shifted him to forward, the position at which he had his greatest amount of experience in college.

As a sophomore at Western Kentucky, Smith was one of the stars of a team which reached the mideast regionals of the NCAA tournament, only to lose to powerful Michigan, 80-79. He was called for fouling Michigan's Cazzie Russell, now with the New York Knicks, on a key jump ball which led to the deciding free throw for the Wolverines.

Also on that Western Kentucky team was Smith's older brother, Dwight, who was later killed in an automobile accident after being drafted by the Los Angeles Lakers on the second round.

Guard

Height: 6'3"; Weight: 190

Birthdate: 1-22-45

College: Iowa '68

Acquired from: College Draft No. 3

Years Pro: Rookie

In Sam Williams, the Bucks have the Big Ten's most valuable player of last season and one of the most promising rookies in the NBA. They drafted him on the third round after he had completed an outstanding career at the University of Iowa.

Williams was a first team all conference forward both years at Iowa—he spent his first two college seasons at Burlington (Iowa) Junior College—and received all-American mention as a senior. He ranked third in Big Ten scoring as a junior with a 25.2 average and second to the brilliant Rick Mount of Purdue as a senior with 25.9. He led the conference in free throw accuracy in his junior season with a .838 percentage.

Bucks General Manager John Erickson, who saw a lot of Williams when he coached at Wisconsin, calls Williams "a complete basketball player, one of the top six or seven players I saw in my 10 years in the Big Ten."

Williams was primarily a forward at Iowa, but played all positions at one time or another and will be a guard as a pro. He is 6 feet 3 inches tall and weighs 190 pounds.
